LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

To His Excellency, The Honorable John C. West, Governor of South Carolina, and to The Honorable Members of The General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972.

This report deals not only with the activities of the South Carolina State Library for the past year, but also includes statistical data concerning the local libraries which we trust you will find both interesting and enlightening. This should be of some help to you in determining the amount of local funds needed for the next fiscal year for your own county library.

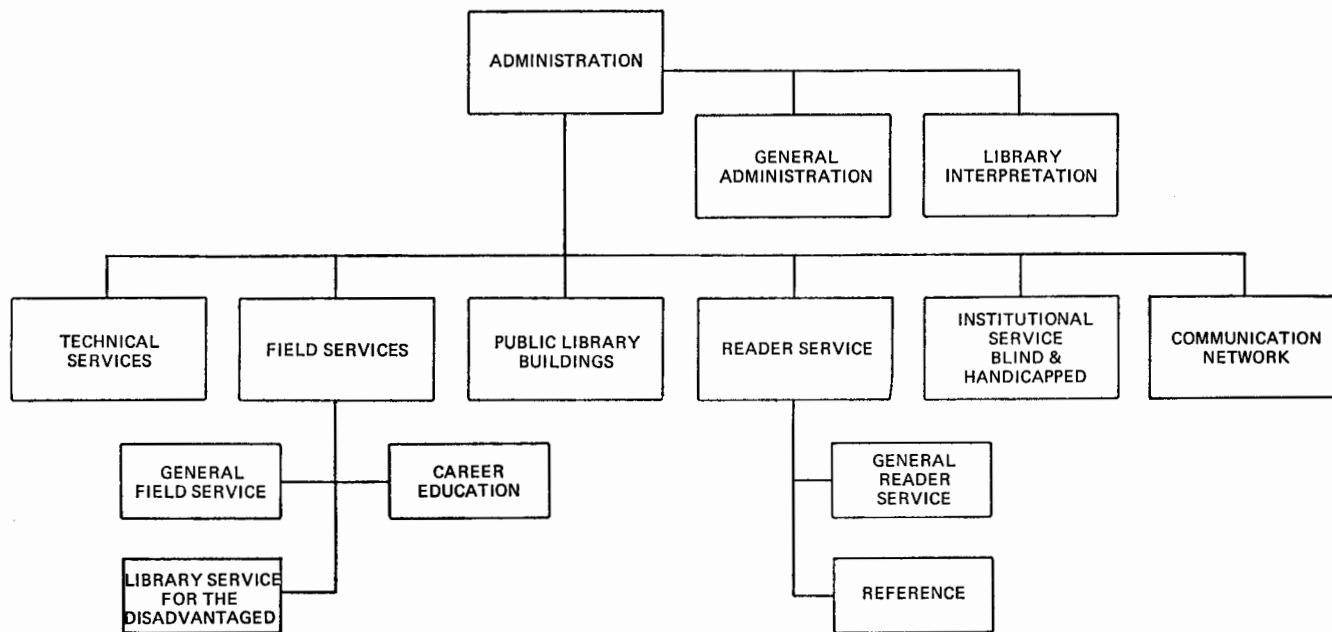

The State Library has handled the increased appropriation for aid to local libraries which was granted by you last year. This increase has helped to meet the rising costs of operating county libraries.

The State Library hopes to be able to provide for your benefit and use in the coming year, almost instant access from the State House to the wealth of information contained in the Library.

Once again, we solicit your use of the Library at 1500 Senate Street in the hope that your efforts on behalf of the citizens of the State will be made somewhat less burdensome.

Respectfully submitted,

H. CARLISLE BEAN
Chairman

THE THIRD ANNUAL REPORT THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY

July 1, 1971—June 30, 1972

The South Carolina State Library was created by Legislative Act No. 464, 1969. This act provided for the re-establishment of the former South Carolina State Library Board as the new State Library and expanded its responsibilities to include all the duties of a general state library. The State Library has the responsibility for the creation and improvement of public and institutional libraries, for reference and research service to state government and state government agencies, for provision of library services to the visually and physically handicapped, for supervision of public library building construction, for reference and interlibrary loan service to all libraries, and for consultant service to all public and institutional libraries. The State Library administers State Aid to public libraries and federal funds under the Library Services and Construction Act. It is responsible for the provision of leadership and guidance in the planning and coordination of the development of library and information services in the state. Through coordinating its services with other institutions and agencies, it is providing the widest possible access to the library and information resources of the entire state to insure more effective and economical service for all library users.

Since 1943 when the old State Library Board initiated a program of statewide library development, the program has developed and expanded until it has become one of the outstanding state library programs in the nation. County-wide public library service is available in all forty-six of the state's counties. All state institutions now have library service for inmates and a good level of service is provided for the blind and physically handicapped. The re-establishment of the former State Library Board as the South Carolina State Library and the completion of the new State Library building made it possible for the first time to provide reference and research services for state government, state government agencies and for state employees. Through sharing resources and efforts with other state agencies, the South Carolina State Library now provides research services of a high level. This is particularly true in the ERIC project, a joint effort of the State Department of Education and the South Carolina State Library, which provides the results of current authoritative research in the broadest field of education to the solution of local problems. The current good level of service which the entire state now enjoys is due largely to the interest of the people in securing the service, to the Legislature in aiding in its support and to the federal government in providing assistance for special programs and services.

READER SERVICES

State government and state agencies continue to make an increasing use of the reference and research services provided by the State Library. Technical and specialized materials are secured to meet the needs of state agencies and state government for research materials and information needed for the efficient planning and operation of agency programs. During the year some 5,000 books were circulated to state officials and state employees and 1,200 research questions, many requiring in-depth searches, were filled. To keep state personnel informed of new material available to them, the State Library issues a monthly publication, New Resources for State Government and State Agencies, which is mailed to department heads and supervisors in state agencies. Members of the staff of Reader Services make periodic visits to state agencies to discuss research needs and to make sure that the materials needed by the agency are being provided by the Library.

Over 65,000 documents from the Education Resources Information Center (ERIC) are provided by the State Library and are used extensively by state agencies. The documents cover the widest field of educational research. Indexes to the material in the collection are provided and complete literature searches are available through the use of a computer index.

REFERENCE AND INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE

Since 1957 the Reference and Interlibrary Loan Service has provided a strong collection of in-depth background materials and specialized technical materials for inter-loan to libraries, a skilled professional reference staff to interpret and answer requests for information, and consultation service to aid local libraries in developing their own collections and improving their reference capabilities. The State Library is the center of an information network designed to meet the library and information needs of the people and institutions of the state. Through its TWX installation, it has access to the holdings of major libraries throughout the country. Information is becoming of increasing importance to government, business, industry, and to the people of the state. To meet this need the State Library makes a continuing effort to coordinate library and information resources within the state in order to meet the information needs of the people of the state.

GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS

The State Library has undertaken to provide a complete collection of South Carolina State Documents. The project was initiated in 1970 and since that time 5,953 state documents have been added to the collection and fully cataloged. Although the collection is far from complete it does offer a wide variety of statistical and general information about South Carolina and is constantly used by researchers both from the state itself and from beyond its borders.

The State Library publishes an annual checklist of South Carolina state publications, a complete bibliography of state documents published by the various departments and agencies of state government during the fiscal year. Approximately 500 copies of this checklist were distributed during the year.

On the advice of the Governor's Management Review Commission, the State Library has become a limited depository for federal documents and eventually will become the regional depository for these documents.

TECHNICAL SERVICES

The Technical Services Department is responsible for the State Library's book collection and handles all ordering and processing of materials added to the collection. These materials include in addition to books, current newspapers, periodicals, microfilm and microfiche.

The Technical Services Department has been responsible for the microfilming of the State Library's catalog and of the catalog of the University of South Carolina. The microfilm edition of the State Library's catalog together with the equipment necessary to use it has been supplied to the three Area Reference Resource Centers in the county libraries of Charleston, Florence and Greenville. The presence of this catalog of the State Library's collections opens up these collections to the use of the people in the three areas since the catalogs can be scanned and any material listed requested on interlibrary loan from the State Library. The microautomated catalog makes the State Library collection more accessible throughout the state, promotes interlibrary cooperation, provides security for catalog records, and facilitates interlibrary loan requests and handling. The catalog of the libraries at Clemson University will be microfilmed during the coming year.

FIELD SERVICES

The Field Service program is designed to extend and improve public library service throughout the state. The Field Staff provides assistance to local officials, librarians and citizens through visits, surveys and correspondence. The program is directly responsible for the administration of State Aid to county and regional libraries and provides the means of supervision and direction through which LSCA Title I projects are put into effect. The career education projects are a special phase of Field Services which provide training opportunities for public and institutional library employees and a certification program for public librarians. Field Services Staff is also responsible for overall planning and supervision of a statewide program of library service for the disadvantaged. This program is conducted through locally developed projects to serve both urban and rural disadvantaged. In the Title III program this year the only disappointment was the failure of the Area Reference Resource Centers in Florence and Charleston to locate and employ a qualified librarian to handle the development of these centers. Other projects in the Title III program have made steady progress.

STATE AID TO PUBLIC LIBRARIES

South Carolina was one of the first states to recognize its responsibility for developing adequate public library service at the local level. A program of State Aid to public libraries was initiated in 1943 with the establishment of the old State Library Board's office. Over the ensuing years State Aid has been instrumental in the establishment and the improvement of county and regional libraries which now serve all forty-six counties of the state. The requirements which local libraries must meet in order to participate in the State Aid program have been largely responsible for the establishment of libraries on a county or regional basis and for book collections of high quality. State Aid is allocated on a per capita basis to all county and regional libraries. The per capita amount in 1971-72 was 20¢. This will be increased to 25¢ per capita in the next fiscal year.

FEDERAL AID TO SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES

The South Carolina State Library has administered funds under the Library Services and Construction Act since the passage of the original Act in 1956. Funds are granted to South Carolina on the basis of a plan designed to remedy major deficiencies in public and institutional library service in the State. The allocation of funds to the State is determined by the ratio of South Carolina's total population and per capital income to the national average. The State Plan provides for the improvement of public library service, the construction of adequate public library buildings, the creation of state institutional library service, the development of interlibrary cooperative systems, and the provision of library service to the blind and physically handicapped. These goals are implemented by a series of projects which provide grants-in-aid to meet specific needs.

PERSONNEL PROJECTS

The success of the library program in South Carolina depends upon well-trained and experienced professional and pre-professional staff to fill library positions at the local level. The State Library's personnel program is designed to recruit, train, and retain qualified personnel.

Intern Program: The Library Intern Program is designed to give young people interested in going into librarianship an opportunity to explore the profession through a summer internship in a public or institutional library which can provide a variety of library experience. This program is conducted by the State Library in cooperation with public and institutional libraries of the state. In 1971-72 seventeen young people participated in the program at fifteen public libraries and in one institutional library.

In-Service Training Opportunities: The State Library provides in-service training opportunities for staff members of public and institutional libraries to keep them up-to-date on development in the library profession and alert to new methods and materials in the field. Scholarships are awarded to both the professional and the pre-professional librarian to attend workshops and institutes as well as regular courses in library science. Six scholarships were awarded to professional librarians; twenty scholarships were awarded to pre-professional librarians from ten county and regional library systems to take basic courses in library science in the areas of book selection, children's literature, young adult literature, and the use of audio-visual materials.

COUNTY LIBRARY PROJECT

A long standing goal of the South Carolina public library program has been the creation of larger units of service having sufficient population and financial resources to provide good library service. With the unification of the Kershaw County Library system in 1971, all forty-six counties of the state now have legally established countywide library service. A major instrument in the achievement of this milestone has been the County Library Project, by means of which independent public library agencies have been encouraged to join into a single county system serving the entire population. The State Library provides grants-in-aid for professional personnel and materials and gives professional advice and assistance during a demonstration program planned to make the new library system a model of recommended practices and procedures. By means of the County Library Project unified county library systems have been developed in seven counties since 1957.

In 1971-72 the Marion County Library, which consolidated three former municipal libraries, was in the second year of the three-year demonstration program. Service in Marion, Mullins, and Nichols has been reorganized and expanded, and the groundwork has been laid for extending service into rural areas by means of stations and of book-mobile service. The new Kershaw County Library employed a professional director, began the reorganization of the system, and launched a building program for the county library headquarters.

PERIODICAL PROJECT

The Periodical Project has been a continuing project since 1964. Developed as an extension of the Book Collection Improvement Project, it allows public library systems to improve reference collections through purchase and retention of extensive periodical files. The project has enabled participating libraries to give improved reference service to all areas of the general public as well as to provide for the growing needs of business and industry. In 1971-72, twenty-five library systems qualified for participation in the project at a total expenditure of $15,440.

LIBRARY SERVICE FOR THE DISADVANTAGED

Early in 1971, the State Library began a program to establish public library service for the disadvantaged throughout the state. A number of pilot projects were conducted during the final quarter of the fiscal year. The pilot programs were designed to explore areas of service to the disadvantaged which libraries could develop satisfactorily, to test techniques and materials, and to learn by trial and error in order to prepare for a larger program in 1971-72. $25,000 was allocated for these projects, and five applications were approved. Grants were made to the Beaufort, Horry, Marion, Spartanburg and York County libraries. The pilot projects were successful in reaching many unserved people in each community. A new interest in service to the disadvantaged was evident among the libraries of the state.

In 1971-72, the State Library employed a consultant to coordinate library services for the disadvantaged. The two largest projects, Disadvantaged: Rural, and Disadvantaged: Urban enabled county and regional libraries to plan special projects tailored to meet local needs. With priorities based on the percentage of disadvantaged population, grants ranging from $2,000 to $12,000 were approved for twenty-one projects. Staff Assistance grants were made to three county libraries. These grants provided a beginning salary for a professional librarian either to work directly with the disadvantaged or to free another staff member to work in that area. A Materials Project established an examination collection of printed material and a collection of sound filmstrips, tapes, and cassettes for interlibrary loan to libraries with Disadvantaged Projects. An AV Project for the Disadvantaged provided grants for participating libraries to purchase much needed audio-visual equipment and begin collections of audio-visual materials.

With funds available for the first time, many libraries were able to reach the unreached, both groups and individuals. They discovered many areas in which to work—from a permanent gypsy village in Edgefield County to the isolated Black children on Daufuskie Island. Libraries used few new methods, but they used new approaches to reach new groups of patrons in new areas. The outreach factor was the innovation, with libraries taking service to where the people are and on a level to which they could respond.

LSCA TITLE II: PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION

The Library Services and Construction Act provides funds for public library construction under Title II. As of June 30, 1972, fifteen headquarters and branch library buildings and the State Library building has been completed with the aid of grants under this program.

INSTITUTIONAL LIBRARY SERVICES

The institution program, administered under Title I of the Library Services and Construction Act, provided assistance to eighteen state institutions. Primarily assistance took the form of strengthening the book collections at these institutions. Consultant services from the State Library were available to all. One institution participated in the State Library's personnel program.

The quality of the book collections in the institutions is still a major concern. To improve them the institutions were given a basic grant based on their population and were allowed to match dollar for dollar any local funds up to $2,000. Institutional funds for library support have increased since the beginning of the project. Therefore, more funds were spent for materials than ever before.

The institutional program was also extended to three institutions too small to support a separate library. The Florence County Library, under provisions of a three-way contract between the South Carolina State Library, the Florence County Library, and the South Carolina Crippled Children's Convalescent Center, provides library services to the residents of the Center. Two alcoholic centers of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, Palmetto Center and Holmesview Center, are provided large collections of paperback books of a therapeutic nature.

To help inmates of the Department of Corrections about to be released, projects were established in the Pre-release Centers in Greenville and Spartanburg. The inmates of the pre-release centers are encouraged to use the local public library and are provided opportunities to explore and become acquainted with the many services provided by the modern public library.

LIBRARY SERVICES TO THE BLIND AND PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED

The Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, jointly operated by South Carolina and North Carolina, provides library service to the blind and physically handicapped citizens of South Carolina. Talking book machines, talking books, books in braille, tapes, cassettes, and books in large print are provided for those readers who cannot use conventional reading materials. The service, including the mailing costs, is free.

As of June 30, 1972, there were 2,512 blind and handicapped South Carolinians using the service. A total of 69,411 books were circulated in 1971-72 by the Regional Library.

The State Library provides browsing collections of talking books in five county libraries. Reading guidance is provided by a professional librarian. Anderson, Charleston, Greenville, Richland, and Spartanburg county libraries now participate in this project.

To reach those readers who need large print materials, the South Carolina State Library provided grants to county libraries for the purchase of Books in Large Print. Twelve libraries participated in this program during the year.
